Photoplay Theaters In England Hold Patronage With War News

The motion picture theaters of England have not suffered as greatly as the legitimate theaters as a result of the war, according to the reports that are received in picture headquarters here. And the reason for this might be found in a study of the exhibitors' business. In England not only are motion picture plays flashed on the screen but in almost every theater bulletins from the front are being shown. Special arrangements have been made with the newspapers in the various cities throughout the British Isles and between the pictures the news from the front in bulletin form is shown. The result is that the people have been flocking to the theater for they are not only provided with news but are able to see a good show.

The arrangement between the theaters and the newspapers is an advantage to both. The patron of the playhouse will naturally want to learn more about the matter which is but lightly touched in the theater bulletin, and he buys a newspaper. The newspaper in turn prints the names and locations of the theaters that are showing the bulletins. It supplies the situation in England is considerably better than it is in France, by the way, with regard to the pictures. There is little or no production going on, but the market is open.

It seems as though there ought to be a chance for the American producers to get some of the business that has heretofore been going to the continental producers. To that extent, at least, the American producer will be greatly helped abroad, as well as in this country, by the cutting off of the European film supply. Great Britain uses an immense amount of film—about as much as the United States. And the English producers cannot begin to supply the home market. The correspondent of the Moving Picture World in London is rather enthusiastic over this phase of the situation and in his latest letter tells some very interesting facts regarding the situation in England. He states, among other things:

"Obviously, in the commercial sense, the suspension of transportation of goods between England and the other ports of Germany, Italy, France, etc., is bound to be a distinct advantage of the United States in more respects than in moving pictures. For this is one of the branches of industry in which Great Britain cannot keep herself supplied, and under present circumstances the only way of maintaining the film market is through American importations. There is a probability that such films of the present war, which are so dramatic as to have even local theatrical films of the British troops mobilizing or in camp, but no restriction is placed upon staged films such as dramatic pictures with naval or military settings or upon real military films showing British soldiers practicing army maneuvers. One film in particular has gained much of the opportunity to make the best of this unusual piece of officialism and day by day as the real war progresses they enact the principal incidents and movements with a large company of players in the south of England. The scenes of the great drama are finished with astonishing rapidity so as to be ready for exhibition a day or two after the actual events. The opening scenes of the war are already being screened here in serial form."

"A bill fell among exhibitors last week-end in the form of a notice prohibiting the exhibition of any moving pictures depicting incidents of the present war. The order is so drastic as to have even local theatrical films of the British troops mobilizing or in camp, but no restriction is placed upon staged films such as dramatic pictures with naval or military settings or upon real military films showing British soldiers practicing army maneuvers. One film in particular has gained much of the opportunity to make the best of this unusual piece of officialism and day by day as the real war progresses they enact the principal incidents and movements with a large company of players in the south of England. NOW OPEN

This theater opened only last Wednesday, and has sprung into instant popularity. The reason for this lies in the fact that we show only the best licensed pictures, such as Biograph, Lubin, Edison, Essanay, Selig, Vitagraph, etc.; also the Vitagraph Broadway star cast and the world's special feature films.

WILSON SIGNS ORDER TO AID U.S. TRADE

Suspends Laws, Thus Permit- ting Registry of Foreign Built Ships.

The willingness of American shipowners to assist the United States Government in preserving the foreign trade from destruction during the war in Europe is ready to be tested. President Wilson has signed the Executive order suspending for varying periods certain provisions of the navigation law which make it difficult for foreign-built ships to come into American registry under the new registry law. The President had previously been assured that if the Executive order was signed at least 100 foreign-built vessels would immediately come under the American flag.

The principal difficulty in the way of shipowners has been the provision requiring watch officers on American registered ships to be citizens of this country. As there is a scarcity of trained American ship officers, the owners declared that it would be impossible to operate the vessels after they were registered.

This provision the President has suspended for a period of seven years, within which time, if a vacancy occurs within two years from date, they can be filled with men regardless of their citizenship, but after that time only by Americans, their being figured that within the two-year period foreign officers can get out their first naturalization papers.

Another provision suspended is that requiring American registered ships to be inspected and measured by United States authorities in accordance with standards of inspection and measurement set forth in the old laws, as these standards are different from those of other governments, they practically shut out ships built in other countries.

Owen's Banking Bill Amendment Is Opposed

It has become clear that strenuous opposition will be offered in the Senate to the amendment of the Federal reserve act as proposed by Chairman Owen, of the Banking Committee and as endorsed by a majority of that committee.

Not only is there strong Republican opposition to the amendments, but also Democratic opposition. The plan to allow Federal reserve notes to be counted as a part of the reserve of banks in the Federal reserve system is denounced by numerous Senators.

It is charged that the effort is being made, under the cover of war emergency legislation, to augment greatly the powers of the Federal reserve board and take off various important restrictions on the member banks, thus making the control of the credit system of the country by the national banking system much more complete than Congress originally proposed.

Discussion of the amendments in the Senate, which started yesterday, was put over until Wednesday because of the signs of opposition which loomed up.

Waterways Bill Worries Some Democratic Leaders

Senate Democratic leaders are worried over the question, what to do about the rivers and harbors bill. The widespread denunciation of this bill, in and out of Congress, as a "pork barrel" bill, which has to be propped up with a war tax, is causing much uneasiness among Northern Democratic Senators.

Senator Kern, Democratic leader, is one of those who has no enthusiasm for the bill. He would be glad to see it largely reduced and the "pork barrel" items stricken out.

START RELIEF FUND FOR SICK MINISTER

A relief fund for the benefit of the Rev. Dr. Albert H. Zimmermann, one time evangelistic worker in the Baltimore conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church and presiding bishop of the pastorate of the First M. E. Church of Utica, is being subscribed by his friends and neighbors of Selva station, near East Falls Church, Va.

Dr. Zimmermann has been in ill health ever since he suffered a nervous breakdown from overwork nearly three years ago. For many months, with his wife, Mrs. Ella M. Zimmermann, he has made his home and worked among the people of Selva station.

During the summer months the Zimmermann family has lived in a tent, but with winter coming on a home for the family is necessary. John C. Rau, Washington business man, has offered a little place at Selva station for a fraction of its cost. Those who have assisted the Zimmermann family have started a subscription fund, and are soliciting contributions to the cause. The fund is supported almost entirely by the efforts of Mrs. Zimmermann, and if $500 can be raised for a cash payment on the home, this little woman will shoulder an $800 indebtedness.

Dr. Zimmermann's health is improving under treatment in the open air, and during his convalescence he will hold services for the people of Selva station and its vicinity, where there is a church. It is hoped that in time he will establish a church there.

Mrs. Zimmermann, who sang for her husband in his evangelistic work, feels capable of supporting the family through her music teaching. If a home can be procured, a neighborhood committee has been organized to handle and solicit contributions, and the committee members are urging those able to do so to give in this cause. The committee is as follows:

Irwin H. Furlong, George Simmons, Charles H. Furlong, Edward R. Heath, James L. Hall, James R. Heath, Mrs. M. H. L. Wilmarth, and Miss Grace M. Wilmarth.
